UNCLE SAMUEL WANTS TO KNOW.

His Agents Will Investigate the Price of Beef

AT ST. LOUIS AND ELSEWHERE

Meanwhile Dr. Salmon Explains How the Cow Broke the High Jump Record.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Dr. Salmon, Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, is preparing instructions to agents in accordance with Senator Morton's direction to investigate the cause of the high price of beef products, and what influence the Trust has in the prices. The inquiry will be carried on at Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, Nebraska City, Sioux City, Hammond, Ind., and other points where the bureau has a force of experts.

Dr. Salmon has heretofore made an inquiry in this direction and his report "on conditions governing the price of cattle" gives some views applicable to the present inquiry. He says: "The estimated number of animals from which the beef supply is drawn gives but little idea as to whether this supply has increased more rapidly than the demand, or whether on the other hand, it has diminished. Our rapidly increasing population and our fluctuating export trade must be constantly borne in mind, if we wish to hold clear views on this important subject.

The consideration of the proposition of the proportion of cattle to production, and drawing conclusions as to the relative beef supply in different years, the fact should not be overlooked that there has been a change in the twenty years in the character of steers that have been sent to market. New and better blood has been infused into the cattle, and the cattle with which we are marketed younger. Weigh more and yield a larger proportion of carcass than formerly. The beef supply obtained from a steer of 1,000 pounds is now the reason considerably larger than it was a few years ago. The increase of number of cattle per 1,000 of population does not therefore represent the whole increase in beef supply which has taken place since 1879.

There is, in addition, an increase resulting from the greater number of cattle which can only be estimated with great difficulty and uncertainty. It has been evident from the receipt of cattle at the leading stock yards of the country that the number of such cattle have been marketed in proportion to the stock on hand, and this has been one of the leading factors which operated to decrease the price of cattle. Since the decline in prices the profits in cattle raising have been greatly reduced, and in many localities this industry has been abandoned at a positive loss. The inevitable tendency has therefore been to sell off the stock and reduce the business, and consequently the price of cattle has fallen. The result of this has been much greater than during the years from 1881 to 1884, when the industry was paying and the stock on hand was being imported. The result of the work of the country have not felt the influence of the reduction of the stocks of cattle in proportion to the population, while the number of cattle should have increased which must continue at an increasing rate while the price of cattle in the future will depend more on the price of hogs, upon the value of the exports of cattle and beef products, and upon the proportion of steers to mares. The time is not far distant when the number of cattle will be equal to occur in the number of cattle per 1,000 population existing in the country."

The latest cattle statistics of the Agricultural Department were furnished by Statistician Robinson Feb. 14. The report says: "The decrease in number of cattle in 1894 over 1893 has been marked. It amounts to 2,424,952, or 6.13 per cent of the last year's number. Estimate for 1895 makes the number of cattle in 1895 to be 2,356,168, or 36,703,813. Accompanying this considerable decrease in numbers there has been a falling off in the value per head. The decrease in 1894 over 1893 has been marked at 14.66 in 1894 to 14.06 this year, a decrease of 60 cents. The decrease in the aggregate value from $363,789,747 to $403,699,129, or $39,912.

COLORADO CATTLE.

The Sand Storm Hurt Them More Than the Winter's Cold.

DENVER, Colo., April 13.—Reports all show that Colorado cattle are doing finely and have gone through the winter in better shape than for five years. But for the unfortunate sandstorms of week ago the loss in Colorado cattle have been very heavy. Returns from the Northeast show all the way from 10 to 20 per cent of the loss. The average is put in Denver for the Northwest portion of the state, and is 15 per cent. While down in the Arkansas Valley the loss will not exceed 3 per cent.

CLAIM HALL IS SHORT.

Investigation of the Accounts of St Joseph's Collector.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 13.—The County Clerk has checked up the annual statement of County Collector Geo. P. Hall, Jr., and claims that the sum of $165,175 is unaccounted for on the books. On Feb. 15 the Court ordered the Collector to close his office pending the investigation, but he disregarded the order and had collected about $100. Collier then claims his accounts are straight. The investigation is being made by the Republican members of the County, and the search for a shortage will be continued.

DEMAND OFFICES.

Unless St. Joseph Negroes Are Appointed They Will Leave the Party.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 13.—The colored voters of St. Joseph have made a demand on the Republican City Council and Mayor for a division of the offices to be filled by appointment. They declare they must be given substantial recognition or they will leave the party. The demand calls for the appointment of negroes to the offices of Auditor, City Physician, Street Commissioner, Market Master and Weigh Master. The places of the License Inspector and Associate City Clerk will also be claimed by them.

KILLED BY A DOG FIGHT.

Excitement Over One Caused Mrs.
Ebert's Death from Heart-Disease.

Three young and vicious dogs got to fighting in the back yard and Mrs. Ebert ran to separate them, but grew so excited that she became powerless, and almost exhausted. Finding that she was growing faint she turned to go to the house, and barely succeeded in reaching the rear room before she fainted and fell.

"Oh, Robert, help me!" were her last words as she sank dead upon the floor. Her husband would raise his hand to support her. The dying woman evidently realized that she could not recover from the shock, and that she had needlessly excited herself. She had long been subject to heart disease, and lived in constant dread that she would fall dead on the street.

The dogs, fierce rascals, but were of an exceedingly pugnacious disposition. They belonged to her husband, who has usually been crowded with chowing, excited, anxious and nervous men, but altogether it had been a good-natured crowd, willing to pay the tax for the protection they received.

It is a new experience to the money bags, and their annoyance and nervous uncertainty as they edged their way through the crowd to the counter to be interrogated by the deputy collectors was as apparent as that of a "greaser" expecting to be plucked, when he don't know whether he has steered into a Clark avenue joint or a fashionable bar. The blanks are an inexplicable mystery to them, and every form of question imaginable is asked concerning every article of the blank forms.

Jim Hardy, collector of the early comers Thursday, but he was ashamed to ask questions before such a crowd. Col. Hardy did not know how to act, however, after leaving, and one of them put this pointedly: "How many lies have you told here to day?" He took out a blank, declared by his host that he had not told any lie, and before leaving requested one of the deputies, a friend of his, to call him home and "explain this blamed thing."

As the ex-garbage contractor went out the door tugging at his chin whiskers a Post-Dispatch reporter dodged him this way:

"Did you say, Colonel, that your income is not $4,000?"

"I don't know what to have up here for; I don't know anything about this business."

"Did they send an officer after you?"

"Why do you come, then? My income is not $4,000, and I never thought of such a thing, coming here to say so," suggested the reporter.

"Well, you see, I was afraid they might think I was trying to beat old Uncle Sam, and would not go for more, with the wily answer of the contractor as he disappeared down the hall.

And there are others. Many of the questions are by the mouth of all for the purpose of seeing if the law can be evaded. There have been men in the crowds who have thronged the Collector's office every day who have no money to pay the tax to day, and to day, and not represent the active, progressive business element which has been lost.

But, taking as a class, the wealthy citizens of St. Louis do not object to paying the income tax. The miserly few who are accusative of the tax, and those who are continually tugging toward the door, were conspicuously in the gaudy and crowded office day to day, and did not represent the active, progressive business element which has been lost.

COLLECTOR SPECK'S CALLERS

No General Kick, but Millionaires Fix Their Income Low Enough to Reduce Their Tax.

MONDAY will be the last day for paying the income tax without penalty. Since Wednesday Collector Speck's office has been crowded with chowing, excited, anxious and nervous men, but altogether it has been a good-natured crowd, willing to pay the tax for the protection they receive.

It is a new experience to the money bags, and their annoyance and nervous uncertainty as they edged their way through the crowd to the counter to be interrogated by the deputy collectors was as apparent as that of a "greaser" expecting to be plucked, when he don't know whether he has steered into a Clark avenue joint or a fashionable bar. The blanks are an inexplicable mystery to them, and every form of question imaginable is asked concerning every article of the blank forms.

ABOUT GETTING TOGETHER.

The organs of the gold monometallic clique of the Democratic party are appealing for Democrats to get together. But the only kind of getting together they are striving for is that in which the lamb gets inside of the lion.

The threats of discord do not come from the silver Democrats, but from the gold organs and their allies in the party. To what extremity these threats go is well illustrated by the following editorial utterance of the Philadelphia Times, professedly Democratic:

The time has come when intelligent and considerate men will cast party lines to the winds to sustain the integrity of the national faith and the tranquillity of business and trade. The Times will support no man for President in 1896 who is not squarely for honest money, for that is the paramount issue.

Senator Palmer, who voices the opposition to any expression of the will of the Democracy of Illinois on the money question, plainly intimates that he and his "sound money" (meaning gold monometallic) associates will not accept as binding any decision of the State Convention in June unless it favors his recently acquited views.

The Post-Dispatch is heartily in favor of the Democrats getting together, but in a Democratic way. The Democratic method of securing harmony is for the majority of the Democratic voters to express the views of the party on the money question and all other questions and for the minority to peacefully and honorably submit to the majority's will. Any other way is autocratic, not Democratic.

COMPLICITY OF THE POLICE.

One of the worst phases of the election rascality exposed by the Post-Dispatch is the apparent complicity of the police with the gangs of thugs and repeaters who intimidated voters and stuffed the ballot boxes. The Post-Dispatch has obtained, and published credible testimony showing that the police when they interfered at all were almost invariably on the side of fraud and against the citizens who were trying to prevent fraud.

In the First Ward G. J. Gerwiner, a Republican challenger, swears that although he showed his credentials he was twice put out of the Second Precinct polling place by the policemen at the instance of Butler and Burke because he challenged repeaters.

Isaac G. Harvey testified that negroes were cursed and threatened and that one negro was knocked down without interference from policemen who were standing by.

Three Republican judges in the First Ward declared that they were deterred by fear of violence from stopping frauds, although policemen were stationed at the polling place to protect them.

At Precinct 18 in the Nineteenth Ward the policeman on duty sent three judges who refused to sign the poll books on account of crookedness to the Recorder's office in a patrol wagon.

In Precinct 59 of the Fifteenth Ward Robert Wright states that men were let into the back door under the noses of the police, and Henry H. Henderson makes affidavit that the policeman at Precinct 52 of the same ward refused to arrest a repeater who knocked down a Republican challenger and shot at himself. The policeman arrested Henderson.

Charges similar to these have been made after every election. It is certain that few or none of the frauds committed in our elections would be possible without police complicity. The hoodlums who commit them and assault citizens who interfere with their dirty work would not dare to do so if they were not assured of the countenance if not the active assistance of the police.

It had enough when the police fail to do their duty in preventing fraud and protecting citizens in their rights at the polls and in the work of checking up rascality, but when they give their aid to the law-breakers the outrage is intolerable. It must cease if the entire police force, from the chief to the humblest patrolman, has to be turned out.

THE CALAMITY HOWL.

The exponents of the Wall street idea among the politicians and the newspapermen, especially here in St. Louis, are trying to head off the popular uprising against the domination of the money power by the old familiar Republican game of calamity howling. They deprecate all agitation of the money question as a menace to returning prosperity and cry out that the "business interests" demand complete stagnation in politics, no matter what ill the people at large may be suffering.

The public will recognize in this beating of Chinese tom-toms and clashing of cymbals to ward off a "bugaboo" the Republican campaign trick by which the tariff barons stood off the popular revolt against tariff robbery and maintained their fat pickings long after the protection game had been exposed. Those whose memories run as far back as 1880 will recall that the campaign was worked up by this trick then defeated Hancock and placed Garfield in the presidential chair.

The fact that after being frightened away from tariff reform for years until the country was plunged into disaster and the people into poverty the first signs of returning prosperity have followed a sweeping reduction of the tariff, has opened the eyes of the people. They are not deceived by the campaign of noise. They know that behind the calamity howl are greedy elements willing to resort to any scheme to keep the people from breaking their hold on the money-making power of legislation.

WILL COL. MORRISON BITE!

Col. William R. Morrison's well-known ambition to be the Presidential candidate of his party is being diligently used to induce him to join with Senator Palmer in defeating any expression of the Democrats of Illinois on the money question.

A member of the Cabinet (probably Lamont) is quoted as saying that if Col. Morrison can succeed in preventing the extreme silver men from swallowing the party in Illinois, the Democrats of the country will immediately hall him as the proper man to lead the party in the Presidential contest next year." To this is added the menace that "if his own State goes crazy on the coinage question, Morrison's chances will disappear from the sphere of practical politics."

If Col. Morrison were a novice in politics, there might be some danger of his falling to perceive that this is "bait for gullible." Not being a gullible, but on the contrary one of the shrewdest of practical politicians, he is not at all likely to bite at it. He is well aware that it is no advantage for a Presidential candidate to win the approval of members of the party, in order to be rid of the Government set up over them by President Harrison, it may, after all, have been a deep scheme of Mr. Morrison's to convert them to annexation by giving them rulers soodium.

Lieut.-Gov. Day says he can name at least twenty of the best Republican newspapers in Minnesota that are now openly in favor of the remonetization of silver. This is evidence of a considerable revolution in the party that demonetized the white metal.

As the Hawaiians are asking for annexation in order to be rid of the Government set up over them by President Harrison, it may, after all, have been a deep scheme of Mr. Morrison's to convert them to annexation by giving them rulers soodium.

News comes from Delaware that George Massie is likely to be elected United States Senator as a compromise candidate. It is needless to add that Massie is one of the attorneys of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mrs. Nathaniel Collins, the "Montana Cattie Queen," is writing a book of her experiences of camp and prairie life.

The increased price of oil has set the gas companies to thinking of raising the price of their product. The Standard Oil monopoly can touch a good many people when its grasping fingers begin to close.

Major Strong of New York is said to "stand like the rock of Gibraltar," but Boss Platt is controlling the Legislature. There can never be any considerable reforms until the bosses are wiped out.

The beef combine shows that it pays as great an advance for beef on the hoof as the people pay for beef in the market the statement that all the advance is due to scarcity will be accepted.

The mills of India are crippling the mills of Manchester and the mills of the Southern States are crippling the mills of the Northern States. Everywhere the mills are going to the cotton.

But this only expresses in scientific language a fact within the knowledge of most of us. When Jesus said "the kingdom of God is within you," he might have added "the kingdom of the devil, also," for who has not suffered from the strife between the two and who has not been completely subject to one alone during different periods of his life? The man reputed among his neighbors as the best in the world sometimes commits offenses which strike sinners with admiration and awe, while the wickedest man in the world has been known to do deeds of benevolence which have made the staidest church members blush with humility.

We are all Dr. Jekylls, we are all Mr. Hydes. The bacillus of both is in every one. It needs no scientist fresh from his laboratory to tell us that; and if the fact is not commonly noticed it is because most of us are not enough of either to make much stir in the world one way or the other, for while it is very hard to be a great saint, it is not less difficult to be a really great sinner. It is given only to genius to be great in any respect.

SAINT AND SINNER.

According to an English observer and investigator, the strange case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde is not a grotesque fancy, but a fact susceptible of scientific proof. He maintains that the two hemispheres of the brain can act independently and when not in harmony the more active one has a preponderating influence on the control of the motor functions, the patient living two separate existences during the two stages through which he passes: the mental impressions received during each of these separate existences being recorded in one cerebral hemisphere only.

But this only expresses in scientific language a fact within the knowledge of most of us. When Jesus said "the kingdom of God is within you," he might have added "the kingdom of the devil, also," for who has not suffered from the strife between the two and who has not been completely subject to one alone during different periods of his life?

The Post-Dispatch will accept advertising upon the distinct guarantee that its average city circulation, daily and Sunday, is greater than that of the Globe-Democrat and Republican combined.

The Post-Dispatch has become the leading home paper of the Southwest. There is no more welcome journalistic visitor, and it is reaching additional homes every day.

St. Louis now, has three bridges—the Eads Bridge, the Merchants' Bridge and Walbridge. Strange to say, each of these bridges has become a hindrance to her commerce.

We are all Dr. Jekylls, we are all Mr. Hydes. The bacillus of both is in every one. It needs no scientist fresh from his laboratory to tell us that; and if the fact is not commonly noticed it is because most of us are not enough of either to make much stir in the world one way or the other, for while it is very hard to be a great saint, it is not less difficult to be a really great sinner. It is given only to genius to be great in any respect.

SECRETARY MORTON'S FINE WORK.

If Secretary Morton serves the people in his proposed investigation of the causes of the rise in the price of meat it will be the first act of the kind in his long career as a political purveyor.

His course in the Cabinet has been a piece with his conduct as the corporation manager of the Democratic party of Nebraska. Posing as a bluff farmer and representative of Western interests and sentiment, all his energy has been devoted to swinging the Democratic organization around to the Administration's Eastern views and to the support of the gold monometallic schemes of Wall street.

The hand of the Secretary of Agriculture is shown in his correspondence with J. R. Buchanan, in which, ostensibly for the benefit of the Reform Club of New York, he has sought to gain information of and checkmate the work of the silver Democrats. The Secretary refers to the silver views of the great mass of Democrats in the West as "fallacies" and urges upon ex-Congressman Warner the gravity of immediate, coherent measures similar to those have been made after every election. It is certain that few or none of the frauds committed in our elections would be possible without police complicity. The hoodlums who commit them and assault citizens who interfere with their dirty work would not dare to do so if they were not assured of the countenance if not the active assistance of the police.

It had enough when the police fail to do their duty in preventing fraud and protecting citizens in their rights at the polls and in the work of checking up rascality, but when they give their aid to the law-breakers the outrage is intolerable. It must cease if the entire police force, from the chief to the humblest patrolman, has to be turned out.

This is the tool of the international gold ring who exploits himself as the guardian of the special interests of the farmers.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis organ of the gold monometallicists writes that some of "the Administration people" in Washington are urging that Gen. John C. Black, United States Pension Attorney for Northern Illinois, and Deputy Pension Commissioner Bell, should be dismissed from office because they have "declared for free coinage." The disadvantage of this plan is that if all Democrats who favor free coinage are to be thrown out by the Administration there won't be enough left in the party to fill the offices.

The exponents of the Wall street idea among the politicians and the newspapermen, especially here in St. Louis, are trying to head off the popular uprising against the domination of the money power by the old familiar Republican game of calamity howling. They deprecate all agitation of the money question as a menace to returning prosperity and cry out that the "business interests" demand complete stagnation in politics, no matter what ill the people at large may be suffering.

The public will recognize in this beating of Chinese tom-toms and clashing of cymbals to ward off a "bugaboo" the Republican campaign trick by which the tariff barons stood off the popular revolt against tariff robbery and maintained their fat pickings long after the protection game had been exposed. Those whose memories run as far back as 1880 will recall that the campaign was worked up by this trick then defeated Hancock and placed Garfield in the presidential chair.

TAXES MUST BE SETTLED.

Delinquents Will Be Sold Out
After the First of June.

NO GRACE WILL BE ALLOWED

Attorney Slevin Will Try to Secure the Passage of a Law at the Extra Session Permitting Compromise.

In view of the probability that there will be submitted to the extra session of the General Assembly further subjects for legislation than those mentioned in Gov. Stone's original message calling that session, Attorney Eugene C. Slevin will try to induce the Governor to include a measure relating to personal taxation in his supplementary message. The matter referred to is included in Senate bill 209, introduced by Senator Mott, applicable to St. Louis alone, and designed to empower the City Council to "bear and collect all taxes, including erroneous assessments for personal taxes," but which Council has a board of equalization on personal taxes.

The measure is one of a series introduced by Senator Mott and calculated to correct defects in existing laws. The bills, however, were all passed. No. 89 authorizes the collection of personal taxes before a Justice of the Peace, and authorizes the collection of delinquent personal taxes after five years, and No. 210 authorizes the Collector to accept the original amount.

The Committee on Finance did 600 petitions for relief of the character referred to in bill No. 209, and at present has no authority to act. In practice, however, in many cases the relief asked for is granted. Mr. Slevin, as attorney for the City of St. Louis in the collection of these bills, favors the acceptance of the bills, but, if 20 per cent in these cases, rather than enter suit for the small amounts involved in each case, it would be wiser to wait until the whether to shoot or not, but finally deemed it best not to do so.

The men got away. The abandoned wagon was found at night at Fifteenth and Cass avenue.

Maggie Moss recognized her assailants as the two boys of the firm of Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., whose factory is in the neighborhood. Investigation showed them to be Michael Kelsen, 20 years old, and John Reeman, address unknown. Both of them are said to be married.

John Reeman was arrested late Saturday evening. His record is a bad one. He is an ex-convict and has twice been arrested upon the charge of criminal assault.

MAGGIE MOSS' ESCAPE.

Two Villains Attempt to Assault Her in an Alley.

About 12 o'clock Friday afternoon while Maggie Moss, a 16-year-old girl, who lives with her mother and stepfather, William Flannery, at 2019 Olive street, was passing through the alley in the rear of her home, she was approached by two evil-looking men, both under the influence of liquor. As it was daytime, Maggie paid little attention to them.

When they came up to her they began leering at her and one of them made an insulting remark. The girl was so frightened she did not speak, but when she reached the back yard of 2019 Olive street, she had taken two steps when one of the ruffians seized her and put his hand over her mouth to keep her from screaming. The other seized her by the legs. They began dragging her into an adjoining room and succeeded in freeing her mouth. She began using this weapon of defense to scare the men, who fled. She ran down the neighborhood and scared her assailants into releasing her. Thoroughly alarmed by their drunken acts, the two ran down the street to the axle-re and away to safety. They had been unable to determine whether to shoot or not, but finally deemed it best not to do so.

SCHOOL BOARD FUNDS.

Director Grawe's Reasons for Objecting to the Board's Acts.

Director Grawe's attempt at Tuesday's meeting to get some legal advice as to the right of the School Board to build the number of schools now contemplated, or under contract, has caused some talk among his associates. Mr. Grawe's resolution was tabled, and he is now desirous of getting a hearing outside the board.

It is the old story of love, of confidence, of infidelity, of ultimate shame. The girl a merry, light-hearted thing, had frequent spells of despondency of late. Her aunt, if memory serves, knew of her infidelity, and she obstructed the marriage of the young couple were offered by either side of the two families. It was but the mere notion of a day ago right now, which had led her to make good her name. In the face of such unusually propitious circumstances the denouement is easily foreseen.

Did her lover refuse to marry her when she urged him to protect her honor?

Did her fear the aftermath of exposure, or that her marriage had been consummated?

Or was the girl herself apprehensive of the consequences of her marriage, condones, but does not?

These are questions which suggest themselves, yet all will remain unanswered by the lips upon which death has placed its seal.

That poison was first taken is proven by the empty box of rough opium which was found beside the body and his terrible discoloring of the tongues of the suicides.

Why Did Louis Frank and Katie Kolb Seek Such an End.

NO OBJECTION TO MARRIAGE.

Always Light Hearted, Katie Kolb's
Threats of Death Received Little Heed From Her Aunt.

At 10 o'clock this morning the inquest was held upon the dead bodies of Louis Frank and Katie Kolb, who were found under a cluster of trees on the Watson road yesterday afternoon.

The verdict as returned was, as to Miss Kolb, death at the hands of Louis Frank. As to Frank the verdict was suicide.

The story elicited at the inquest was in substance the same as that fully told in the Post-Dispatch of yesterday.

The terrible suffering, the agony, the death struggle of one or both of the parties to this tragedy remains a matter of conjecture. But the dreadful act is told in pretty Kate Kolb's letter to her aunt.

PEACE IN SIGHT.

The Pastime Cycling Club May Be-entered by the A. C. C.

It looks as though cyclists will have a peaceful season this year and that all clubs will work in harmony for the benefit of the sport. Peace negotiations were begun Friday night at a meeting of the Associated Cycling Clubs at which Will Brown, President of the Pastime Bicycle Club, was present. No terms were agreed upon, but signs of an outcome were visible when the bill of rights was submitted. Mr. Brown was not authorized to decline or accept terms until he had laid the matter before the Pastime Club Board.

Mutual concessions were proposed and the spirit on both sides seems to be anything for peace. The A. C. C. told Mr. Brown that the circuit would be open to him and so much discussion and debate and which was awarded to the A. C. C. without any action taken. The A. C. C. again became a member of the association and co-operated with the other clubs in all cycling fixtures.

Mr. Brown, expressing his desire to please the committee, said that he considered it perfectly fair. He will lay the matter before the Pastime Board at the next meeting with a recommendation as to what plan be adopted.

It is understood that the Century Road Club will make application for membership in the A. C. C. on April 15, and should it do so the Pastimes take this action there will be two clubs without the fold and the cyclists will have a powerful organization to accomplish many things for the good of wheelin.

While in the conciliatory mood the A. C. C. instructed its officers to consider the plan obtained in a suit last Wednesday.

Bicyclists in the Guard.

Gen. Miles reviewed the New York Se-feature was the public drill of the Seventh Cavalry. Bicycles were used in the drill, and the men were seen on their bicycles in the center of the spectators and went through a series of evolutions as laid down by Gen. Ordway. Gen. Miles was pleased with the work of the men, and the applause of the spectators and the applaus

of the spectators and
